INFINITY and BEYOND

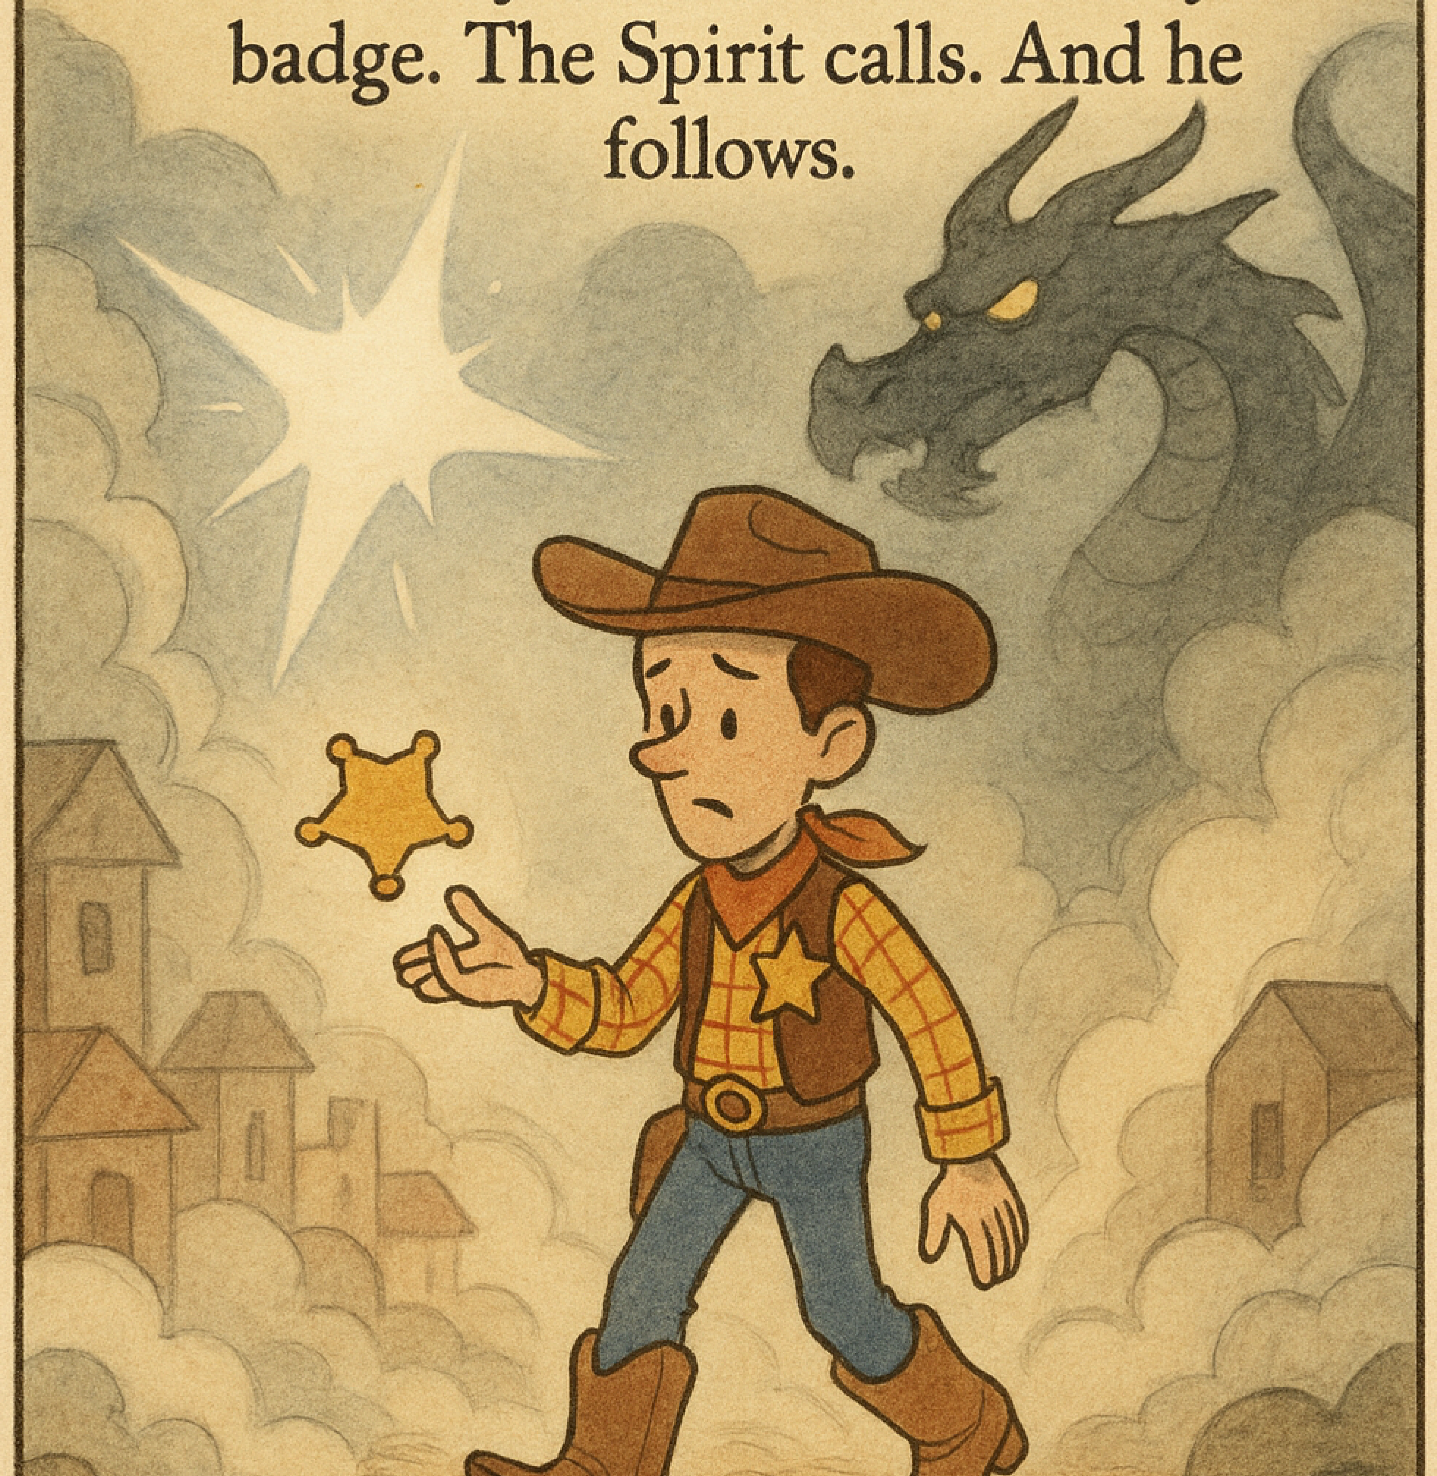
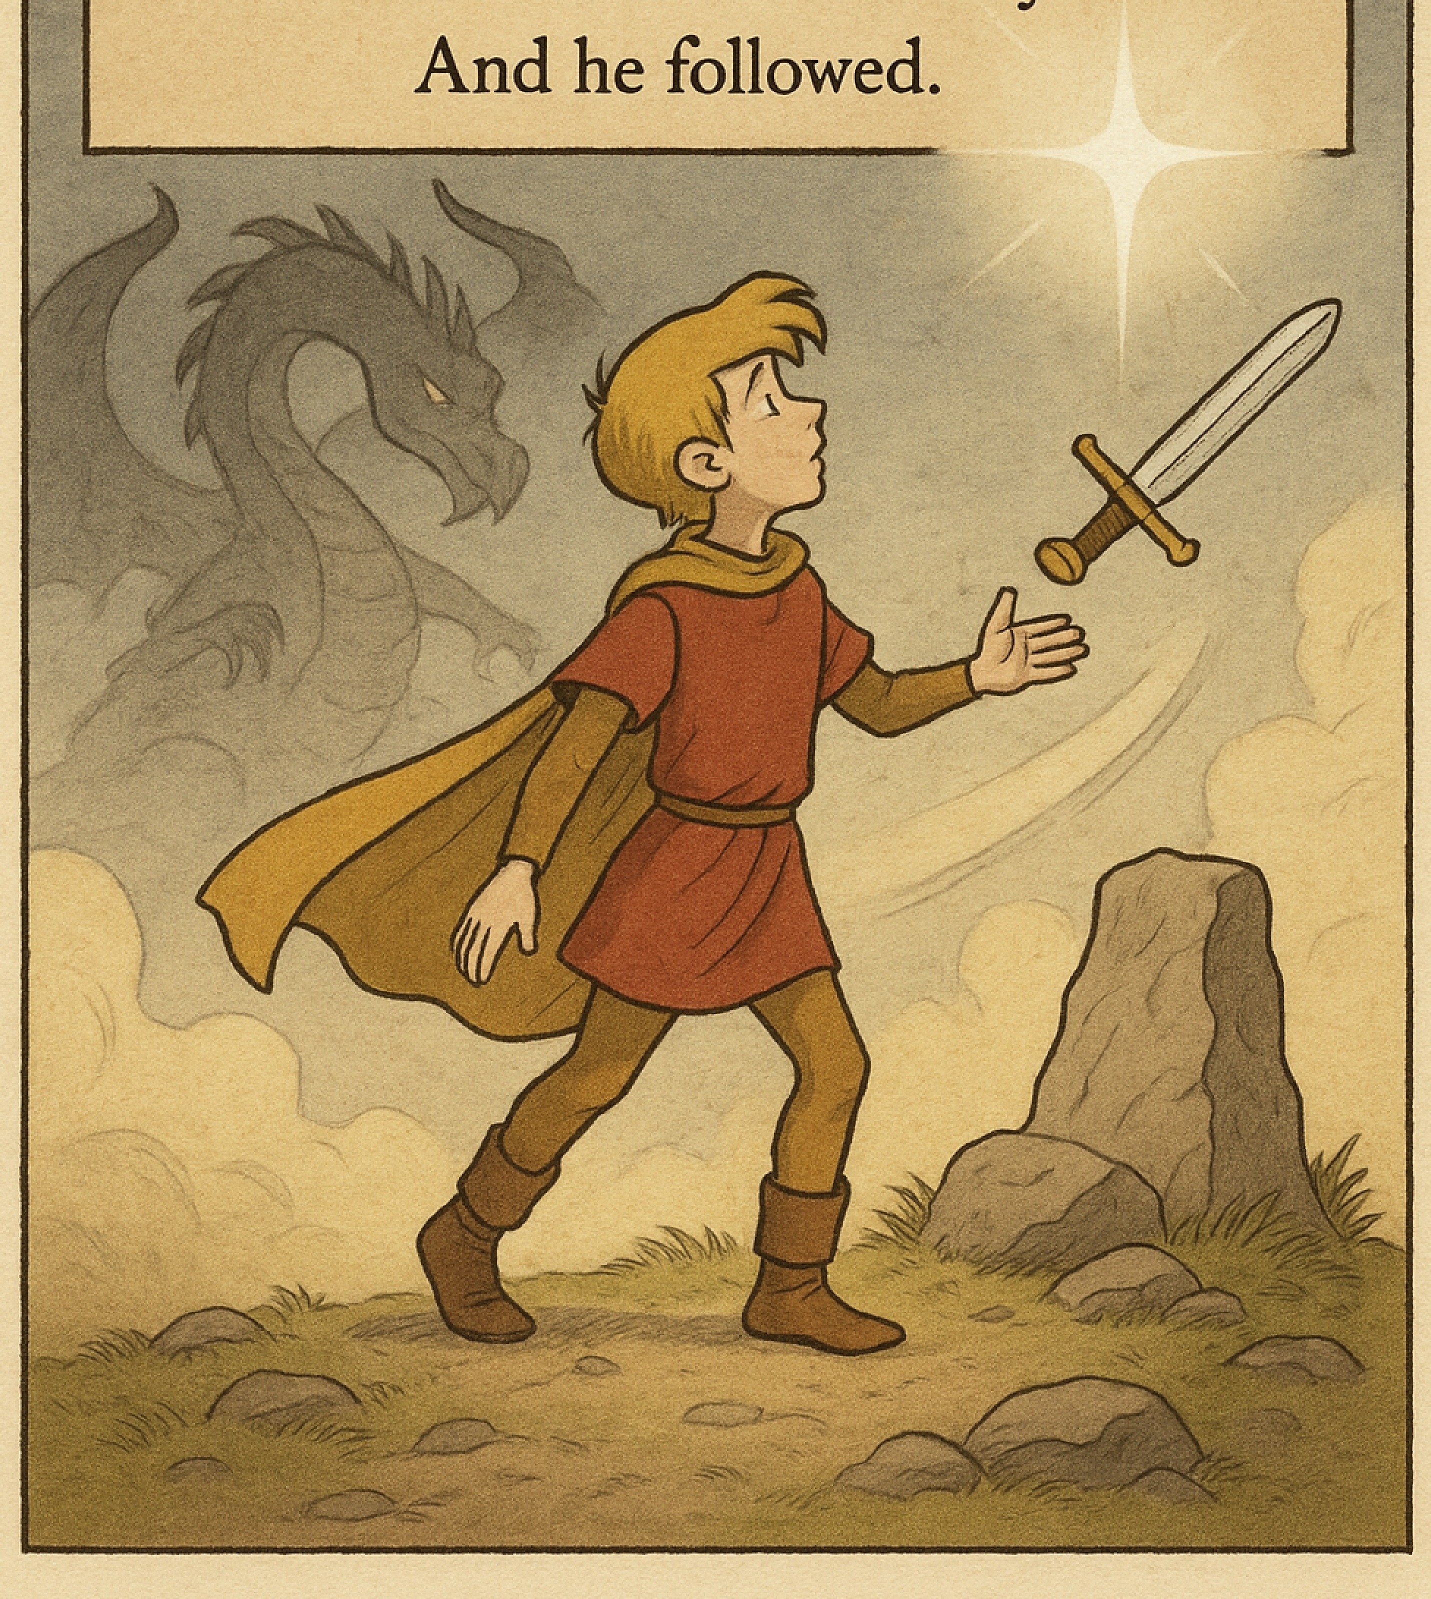
It's all just one big toy box.

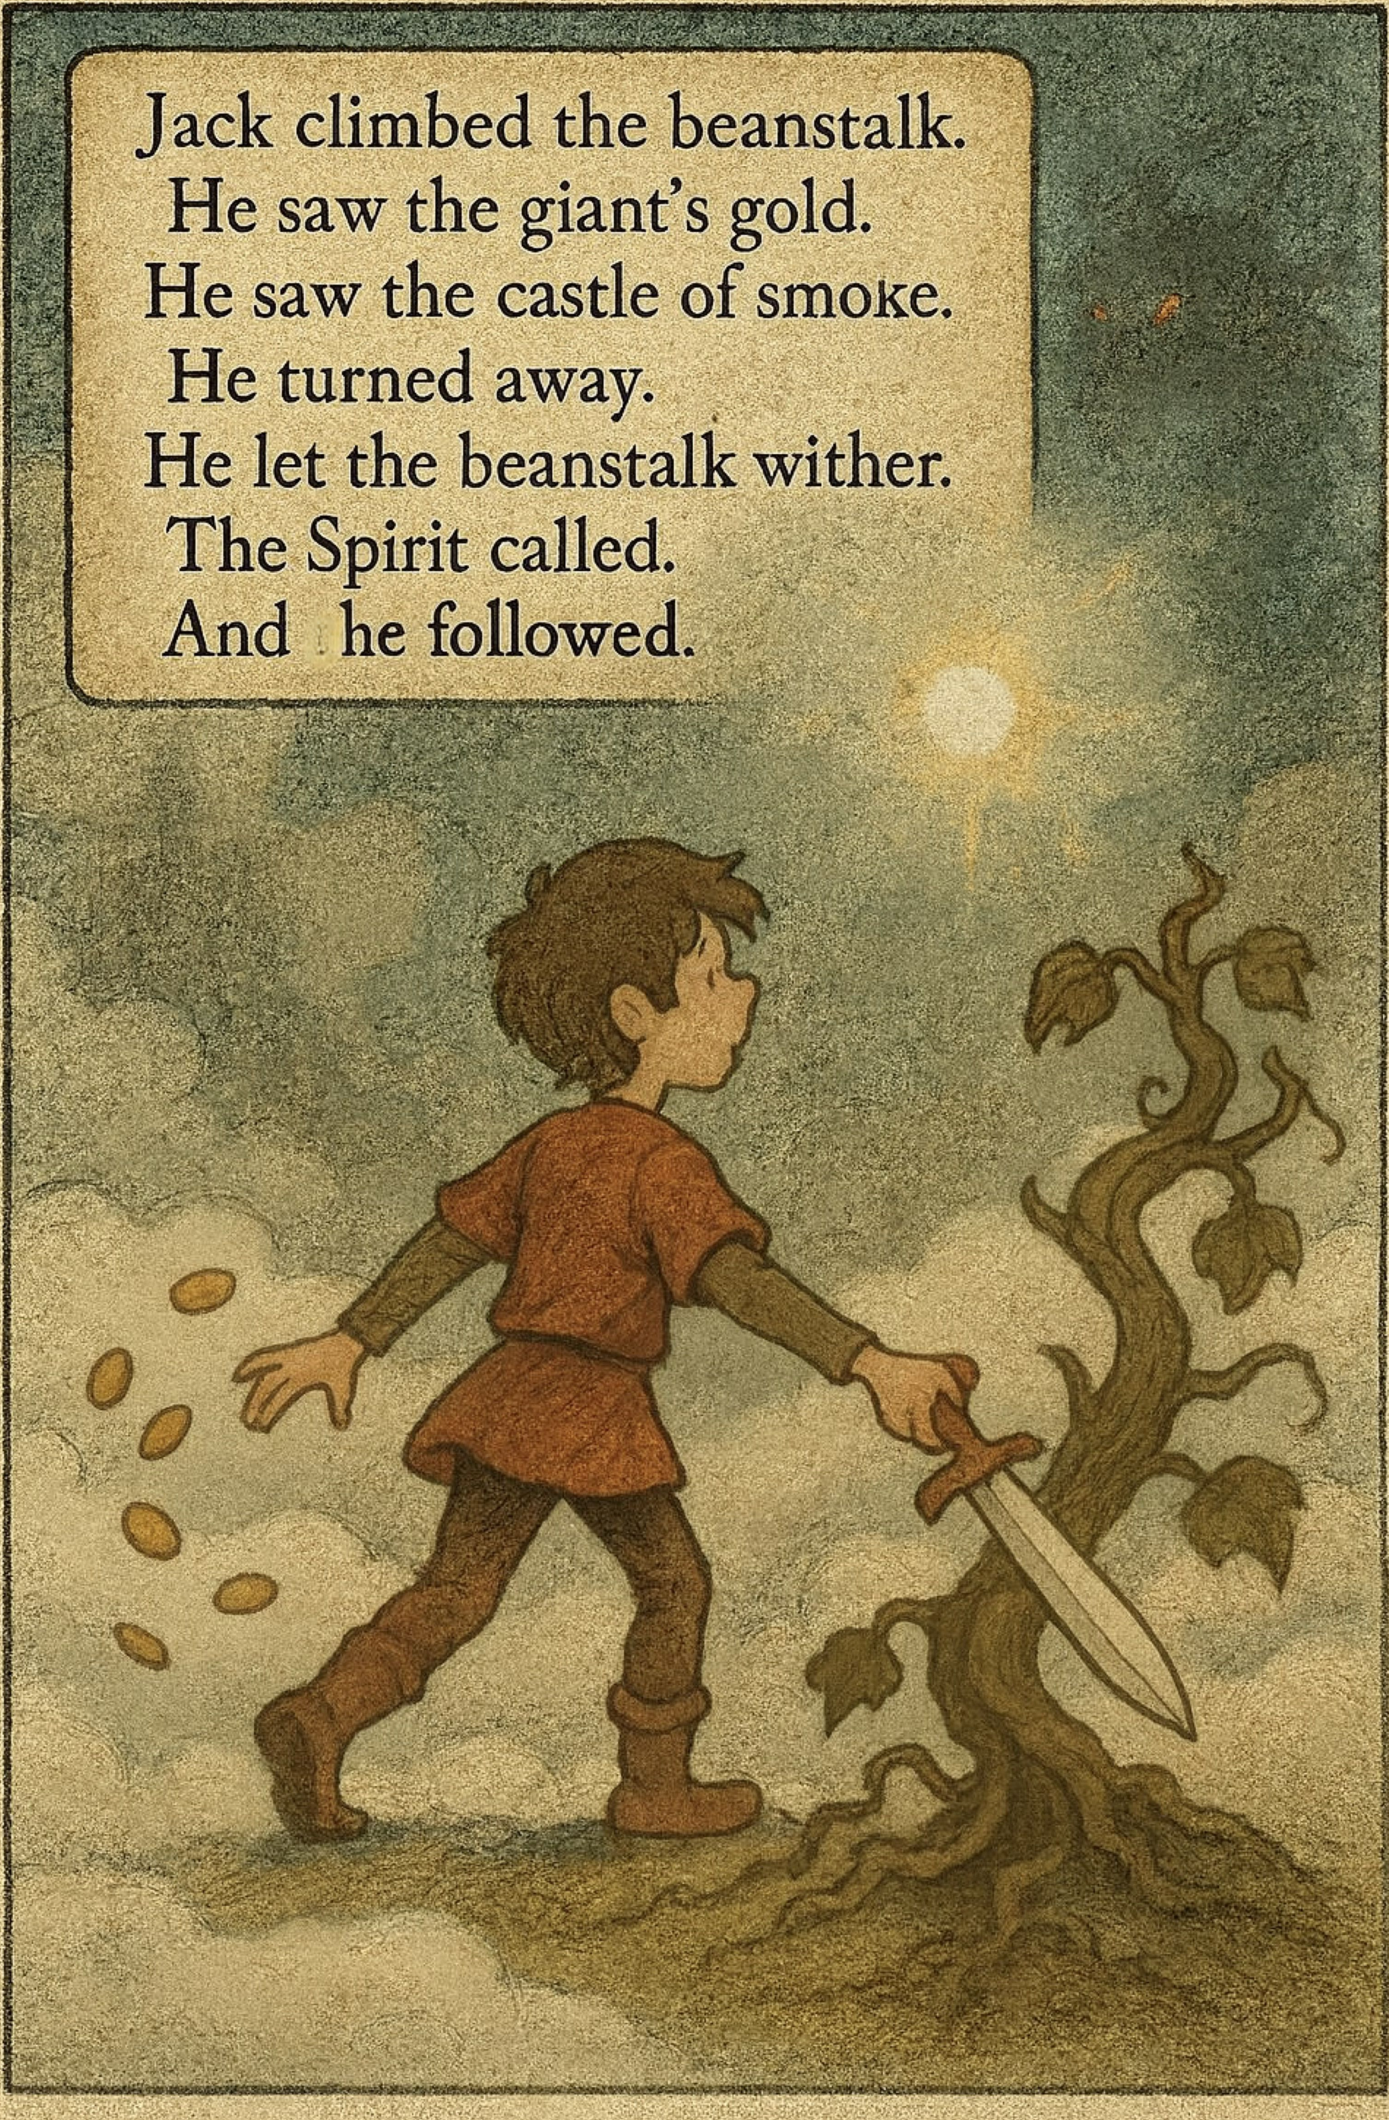
The Toy Box fades, A Dragon waits, but The Toy Sheriff throws away the badge. The Spirit calls. And he follows.

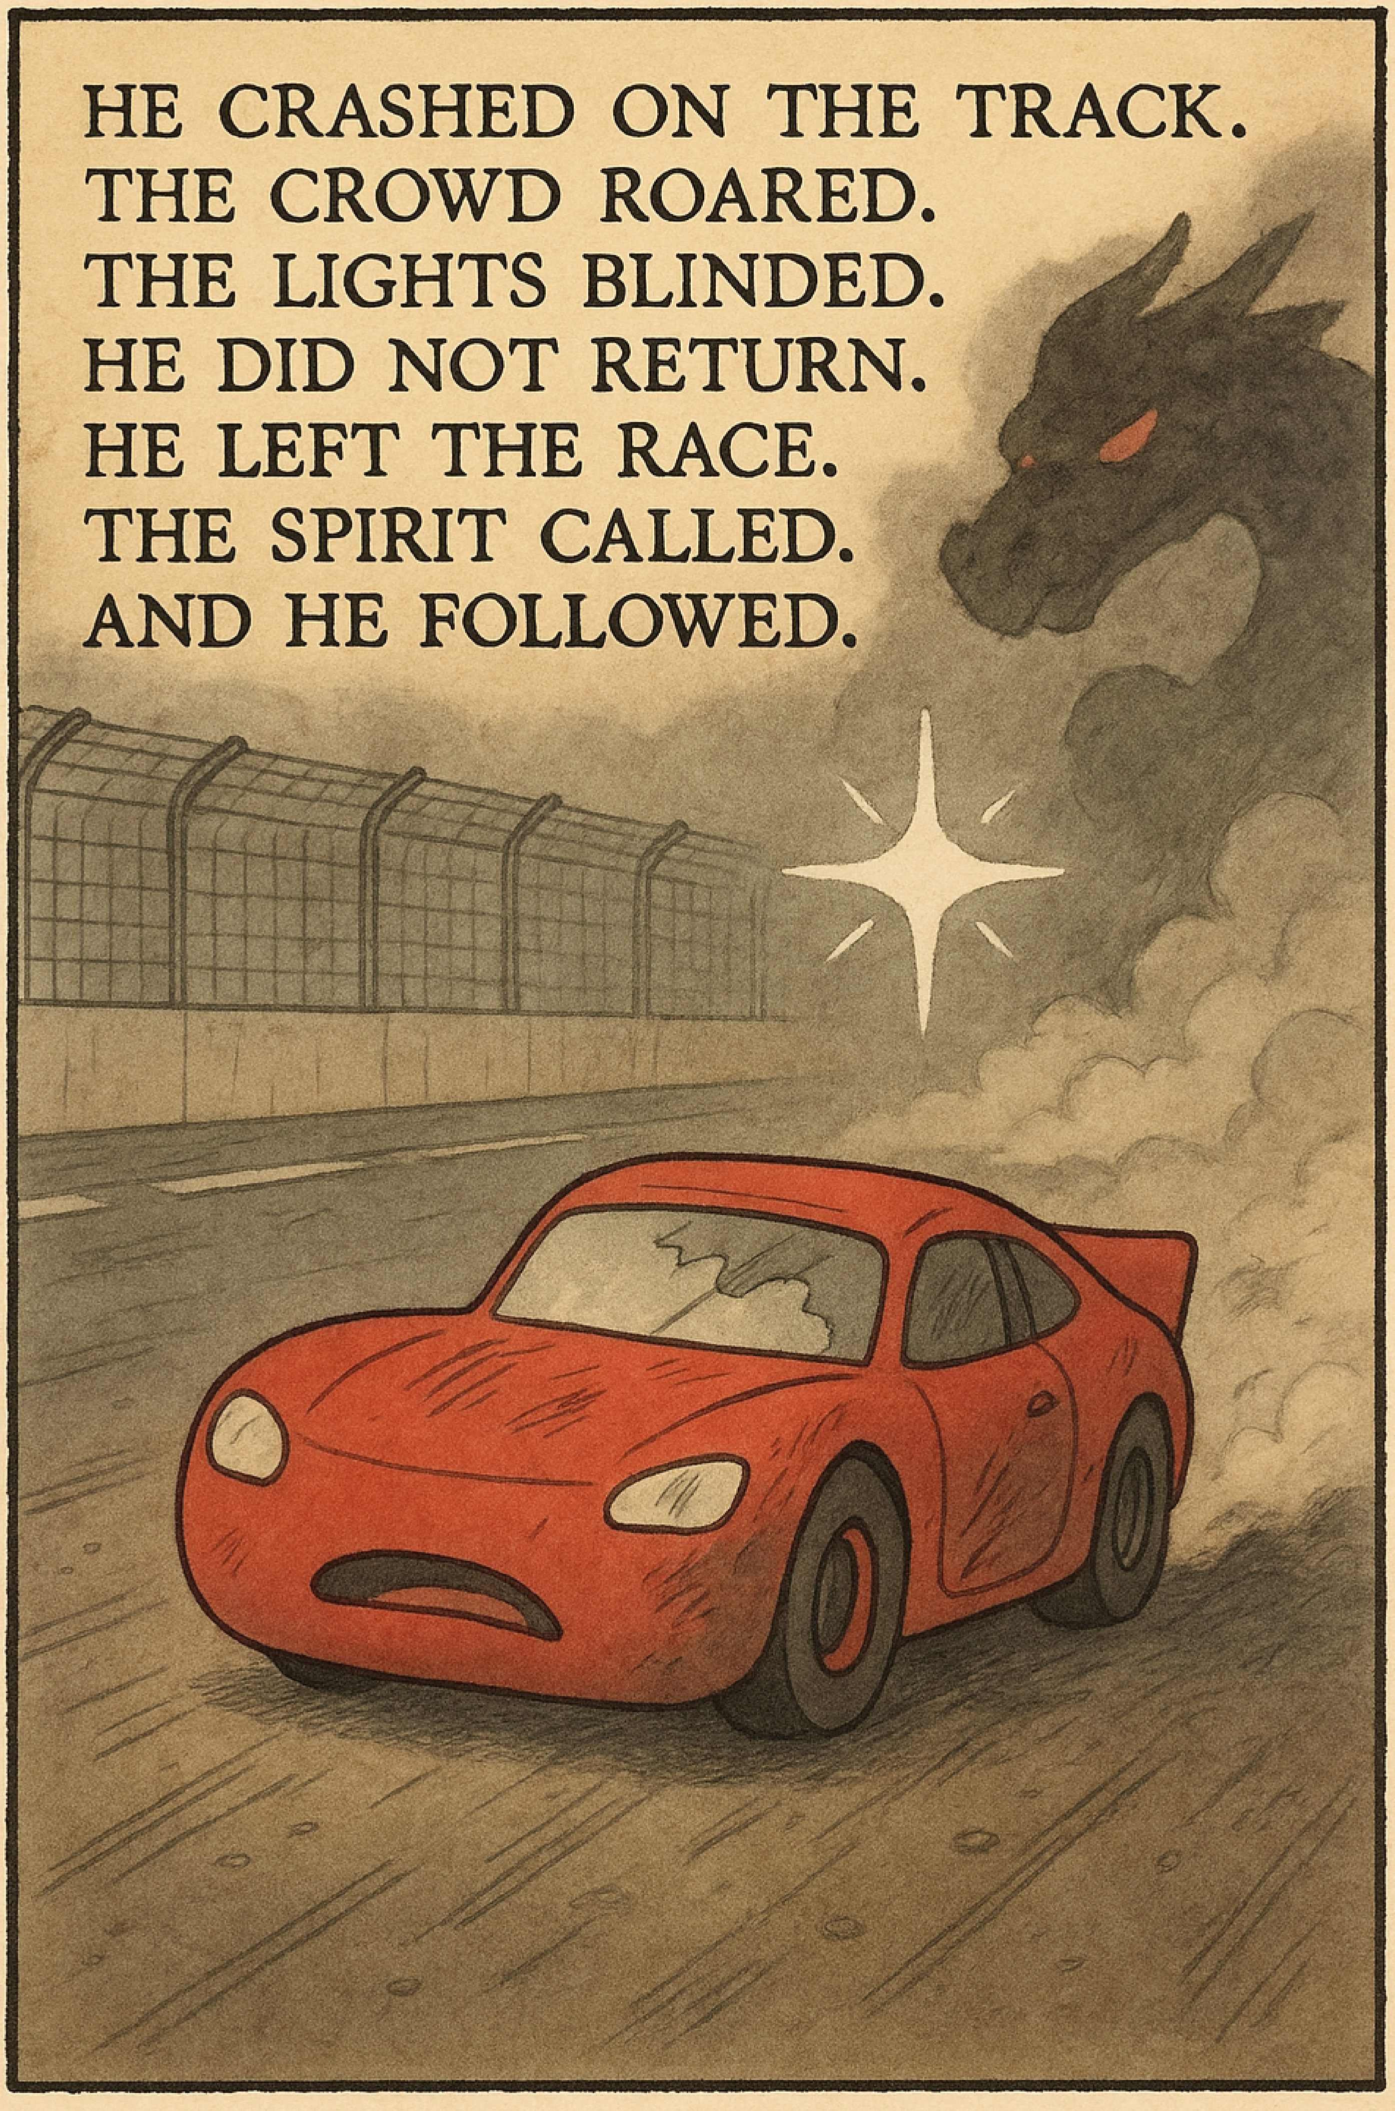


He pulled the sword from the stone.
They crowned him king.
But the throne felt empty.
He Spirit shone like a star in the sky.
He threw the sword away.
And he followed.



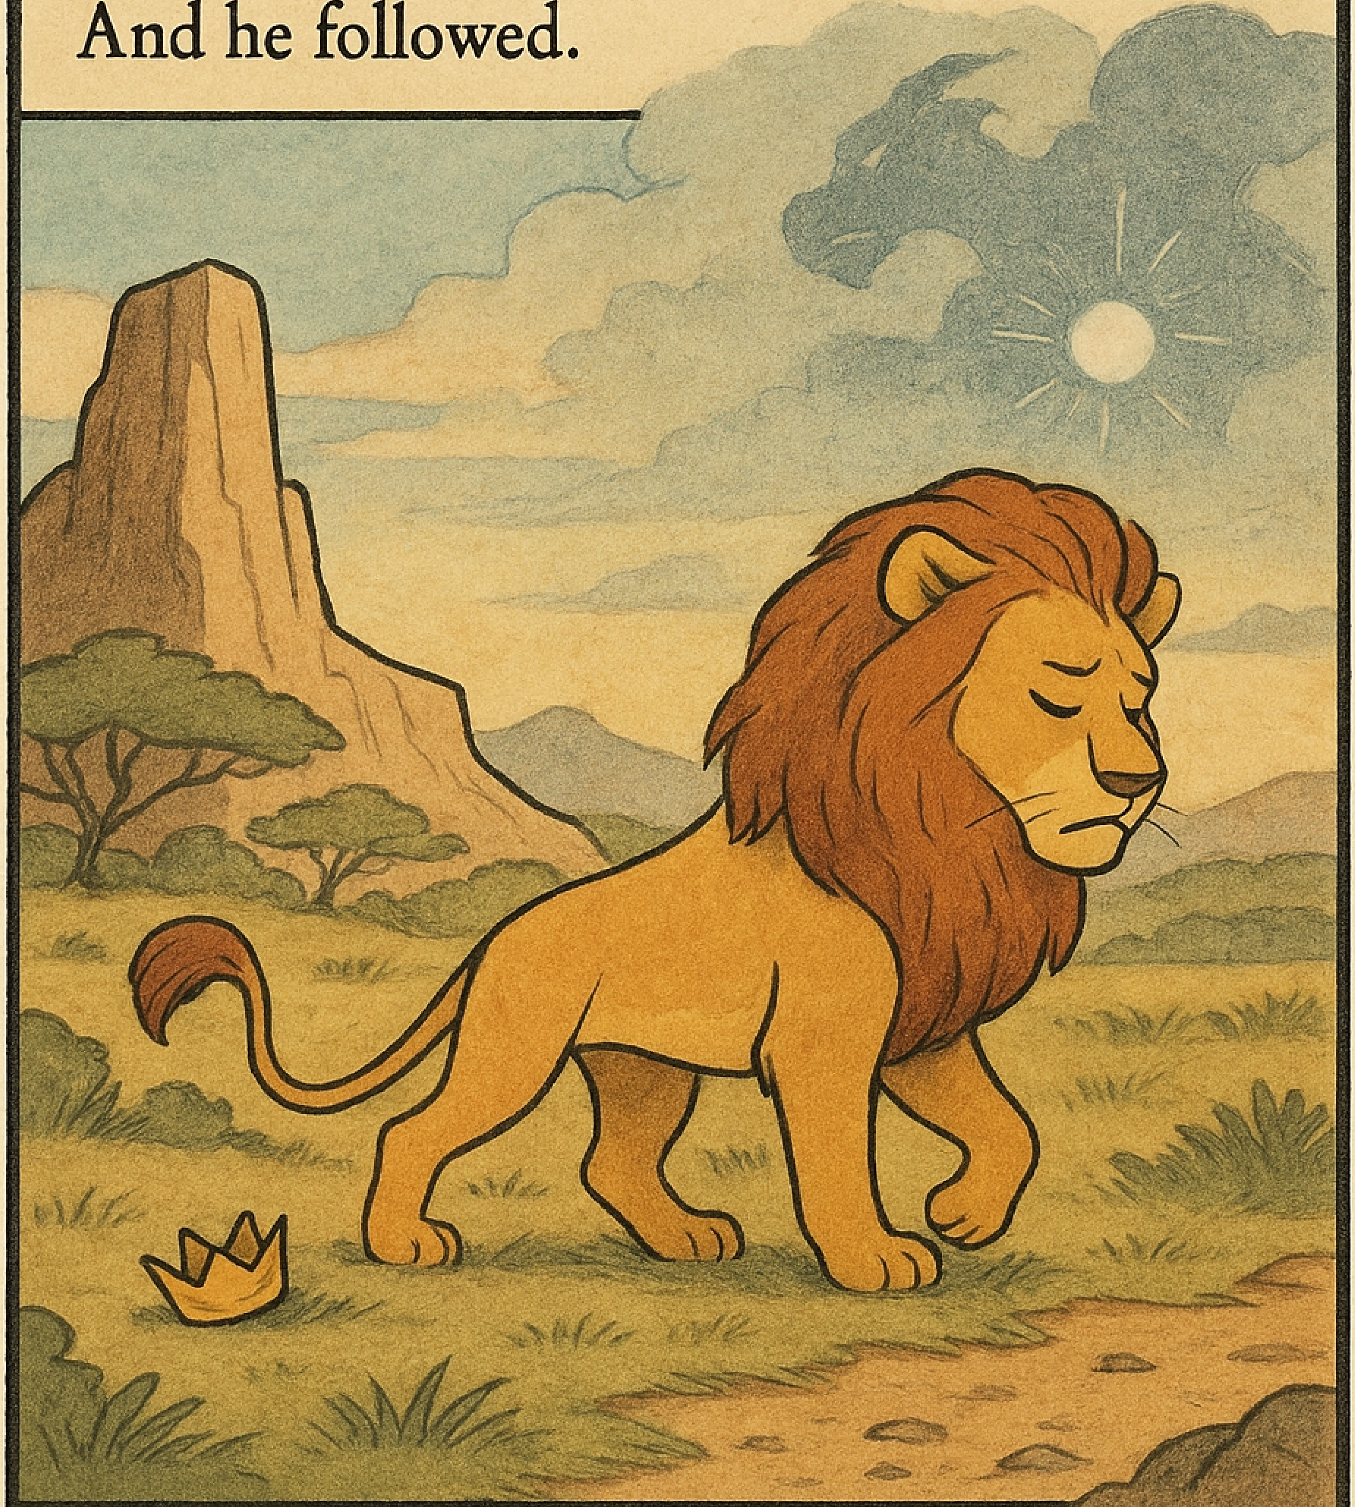
Jack climbed the beanstalk.
He saw the giant's gold.
He saw the castle of smoke.
He turned away.
He let the beanstalk wither.
The Spirit called.
And he followed.



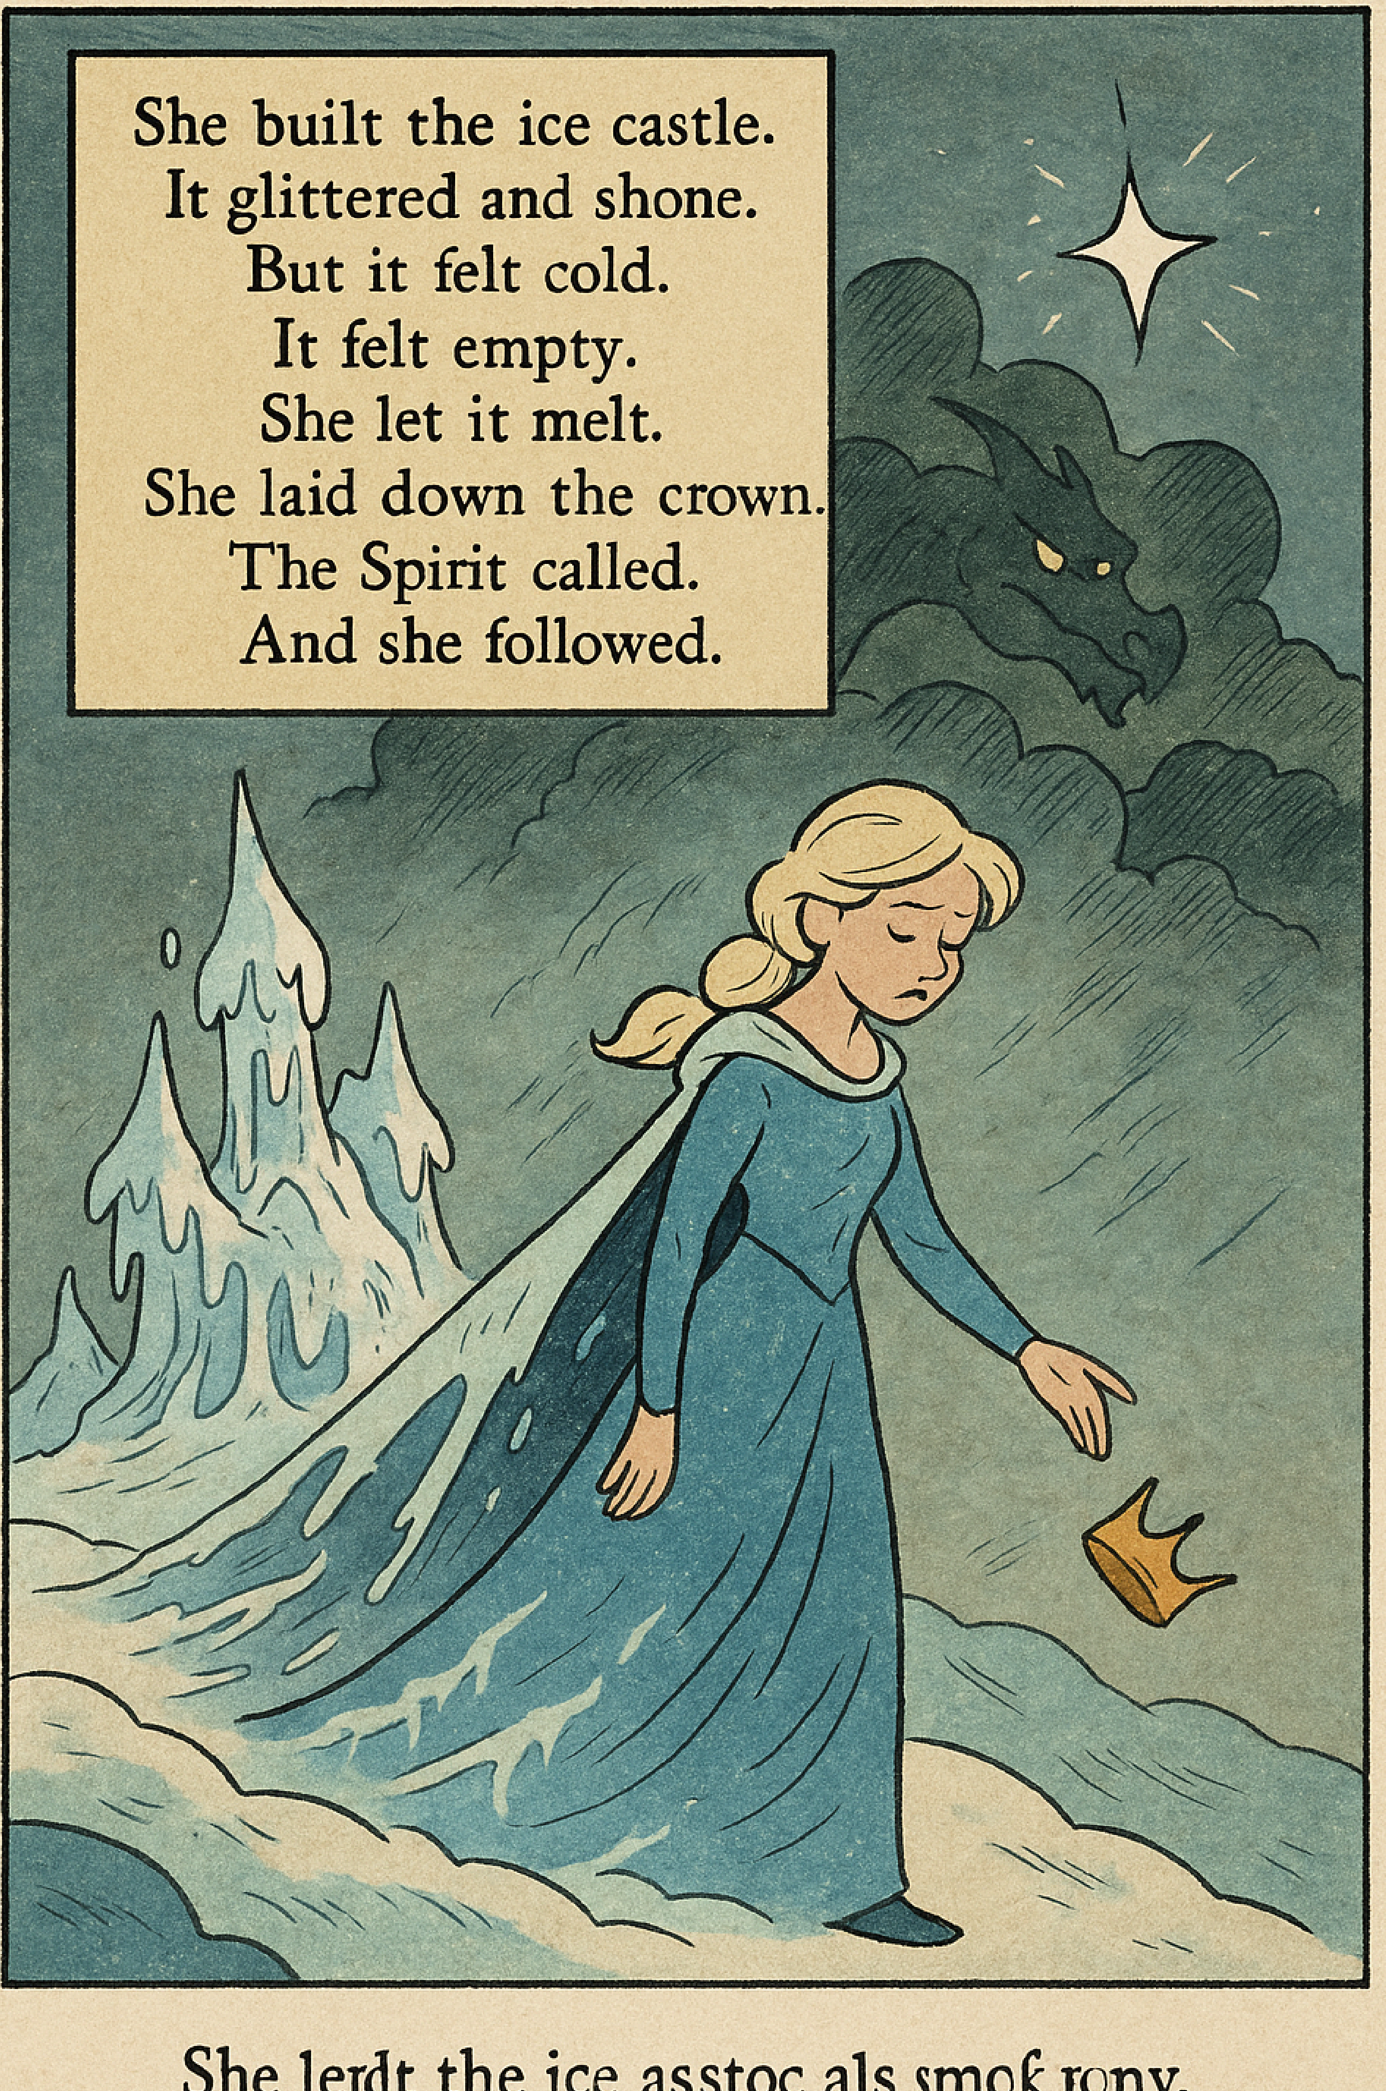


HE CRASHED ON THE TRACK.
THE CROWD ROARED.
THE LIGHTS BLINDED.
HE DID NOT RETURN.
HE LEFT THE RACE.
THE SPIRIT CALLED.
AND HE FOLLOWED.

They cheered: "Take your place as king!"
But the Lion Prince saw the throne.
He saw the endless cycle of lions ruling lions.
He shook his head. He left Pride Rock.
And he followed.

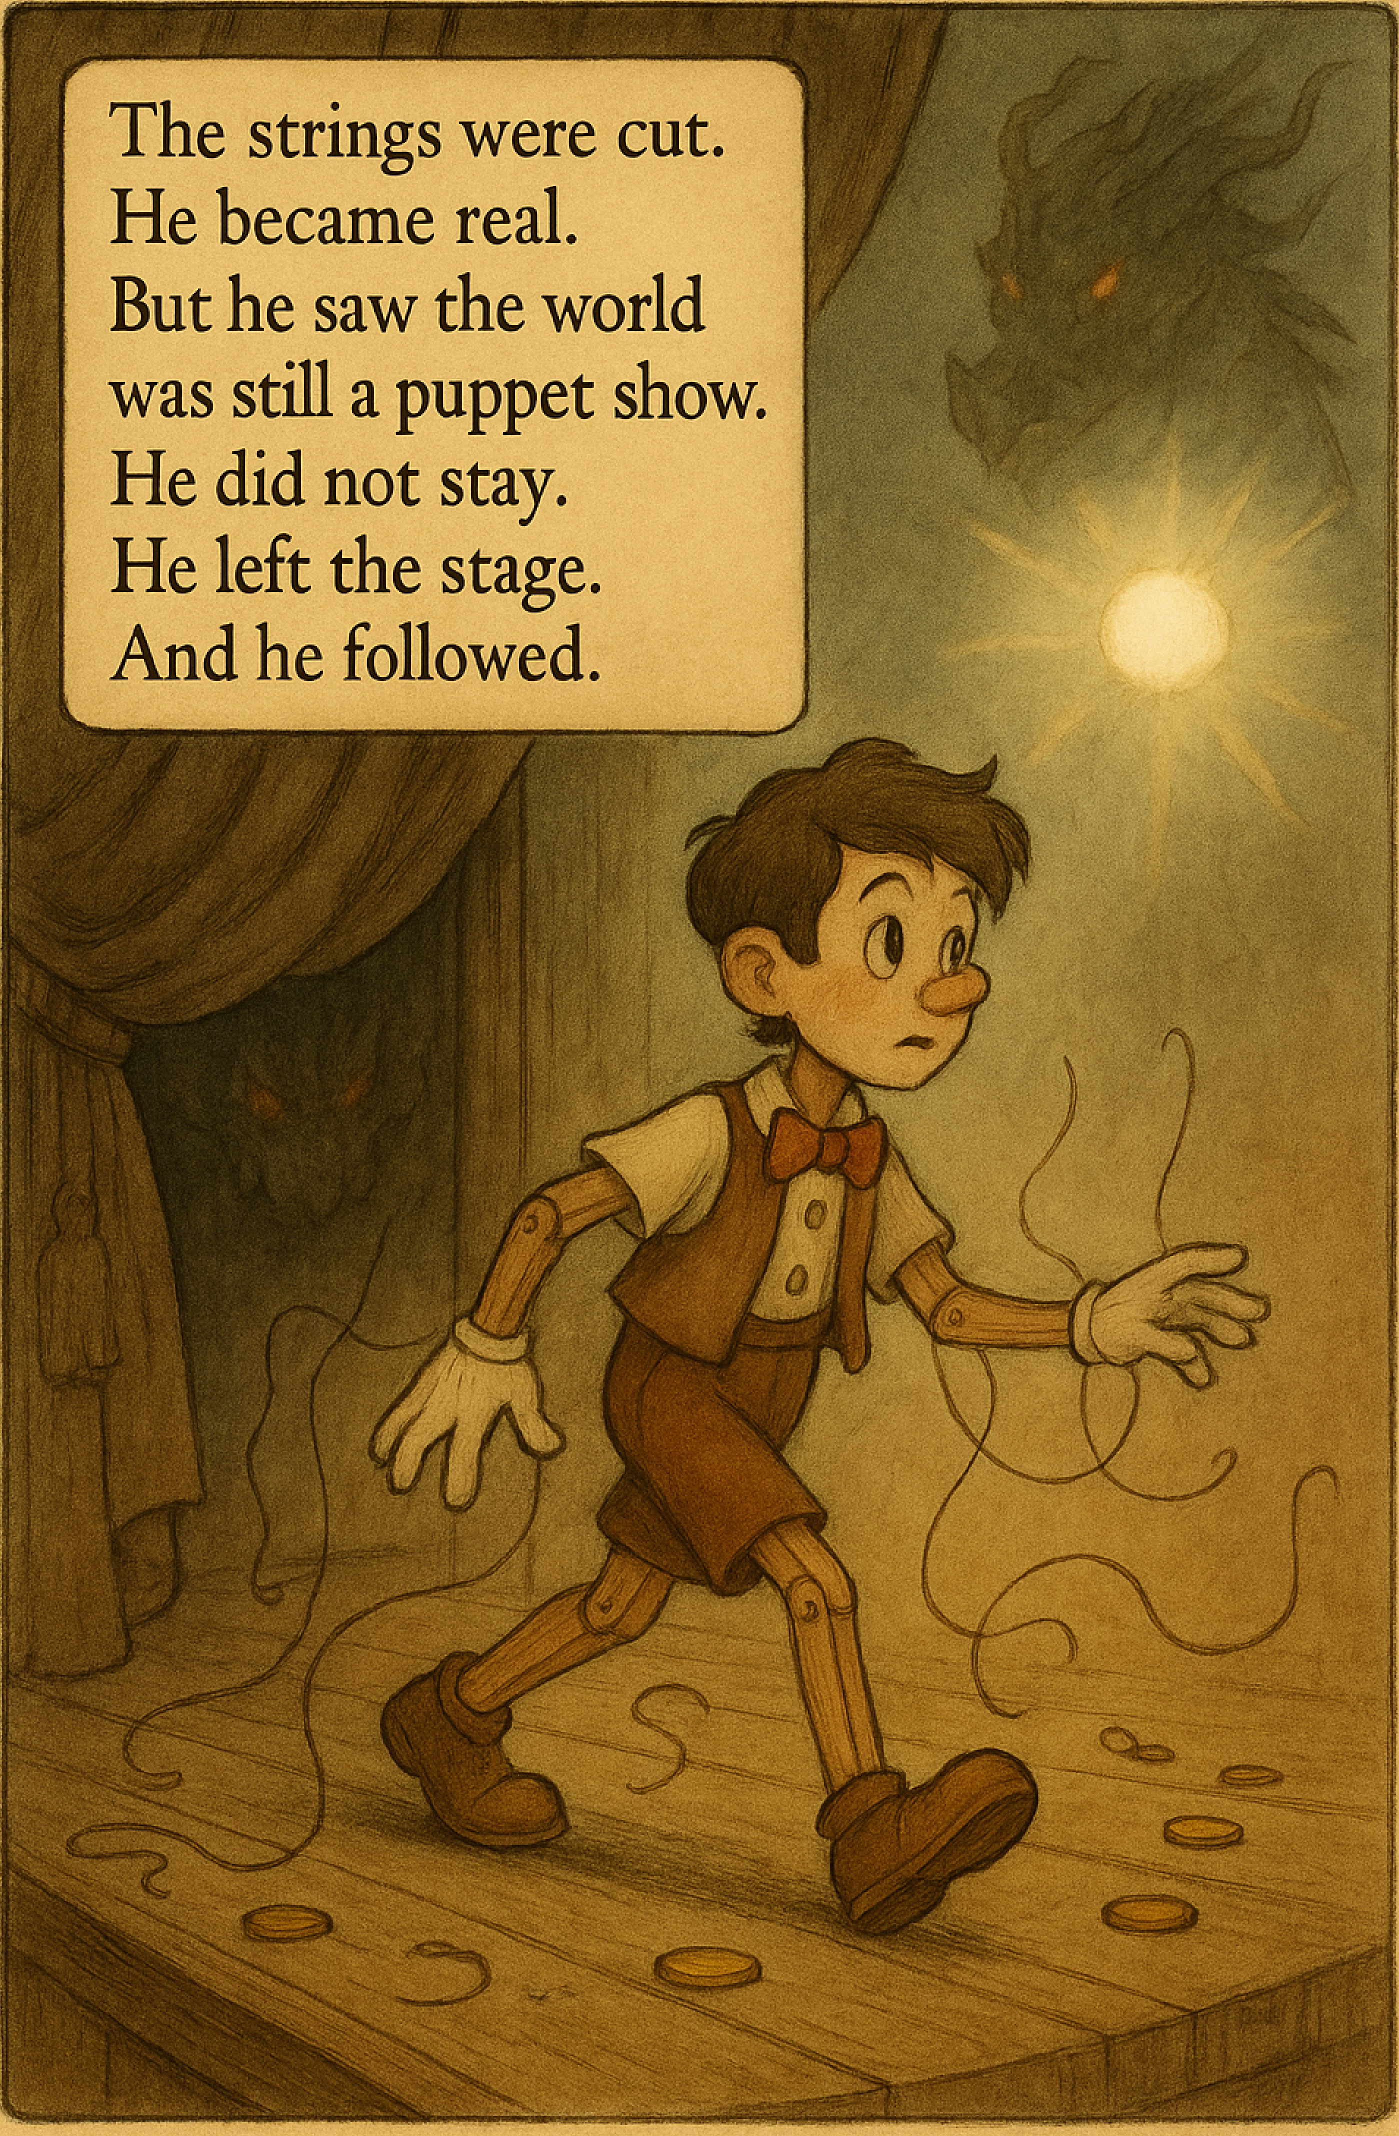


TH LION PRINCE



She built the ice castle.
It glittered and shone.
But it felt cold.
It felt empty.
She let it melt.
She laid down the crown.
The Spirit called.
And she followed.

She lerdt the ice asstoc als smok rony.



The strings were cut.
He became real.
But he saw the world
was still a puppet show.
He did not stay.
He left the stage.
And he followed.

She sailed to the island.
She restored the heart.
But she saw the sea was bigger still.
She threw down the oar.
The Spirit called.
And she followed.

The Eternal Boy floated above the rooftops. He watched illusions fade into mist.
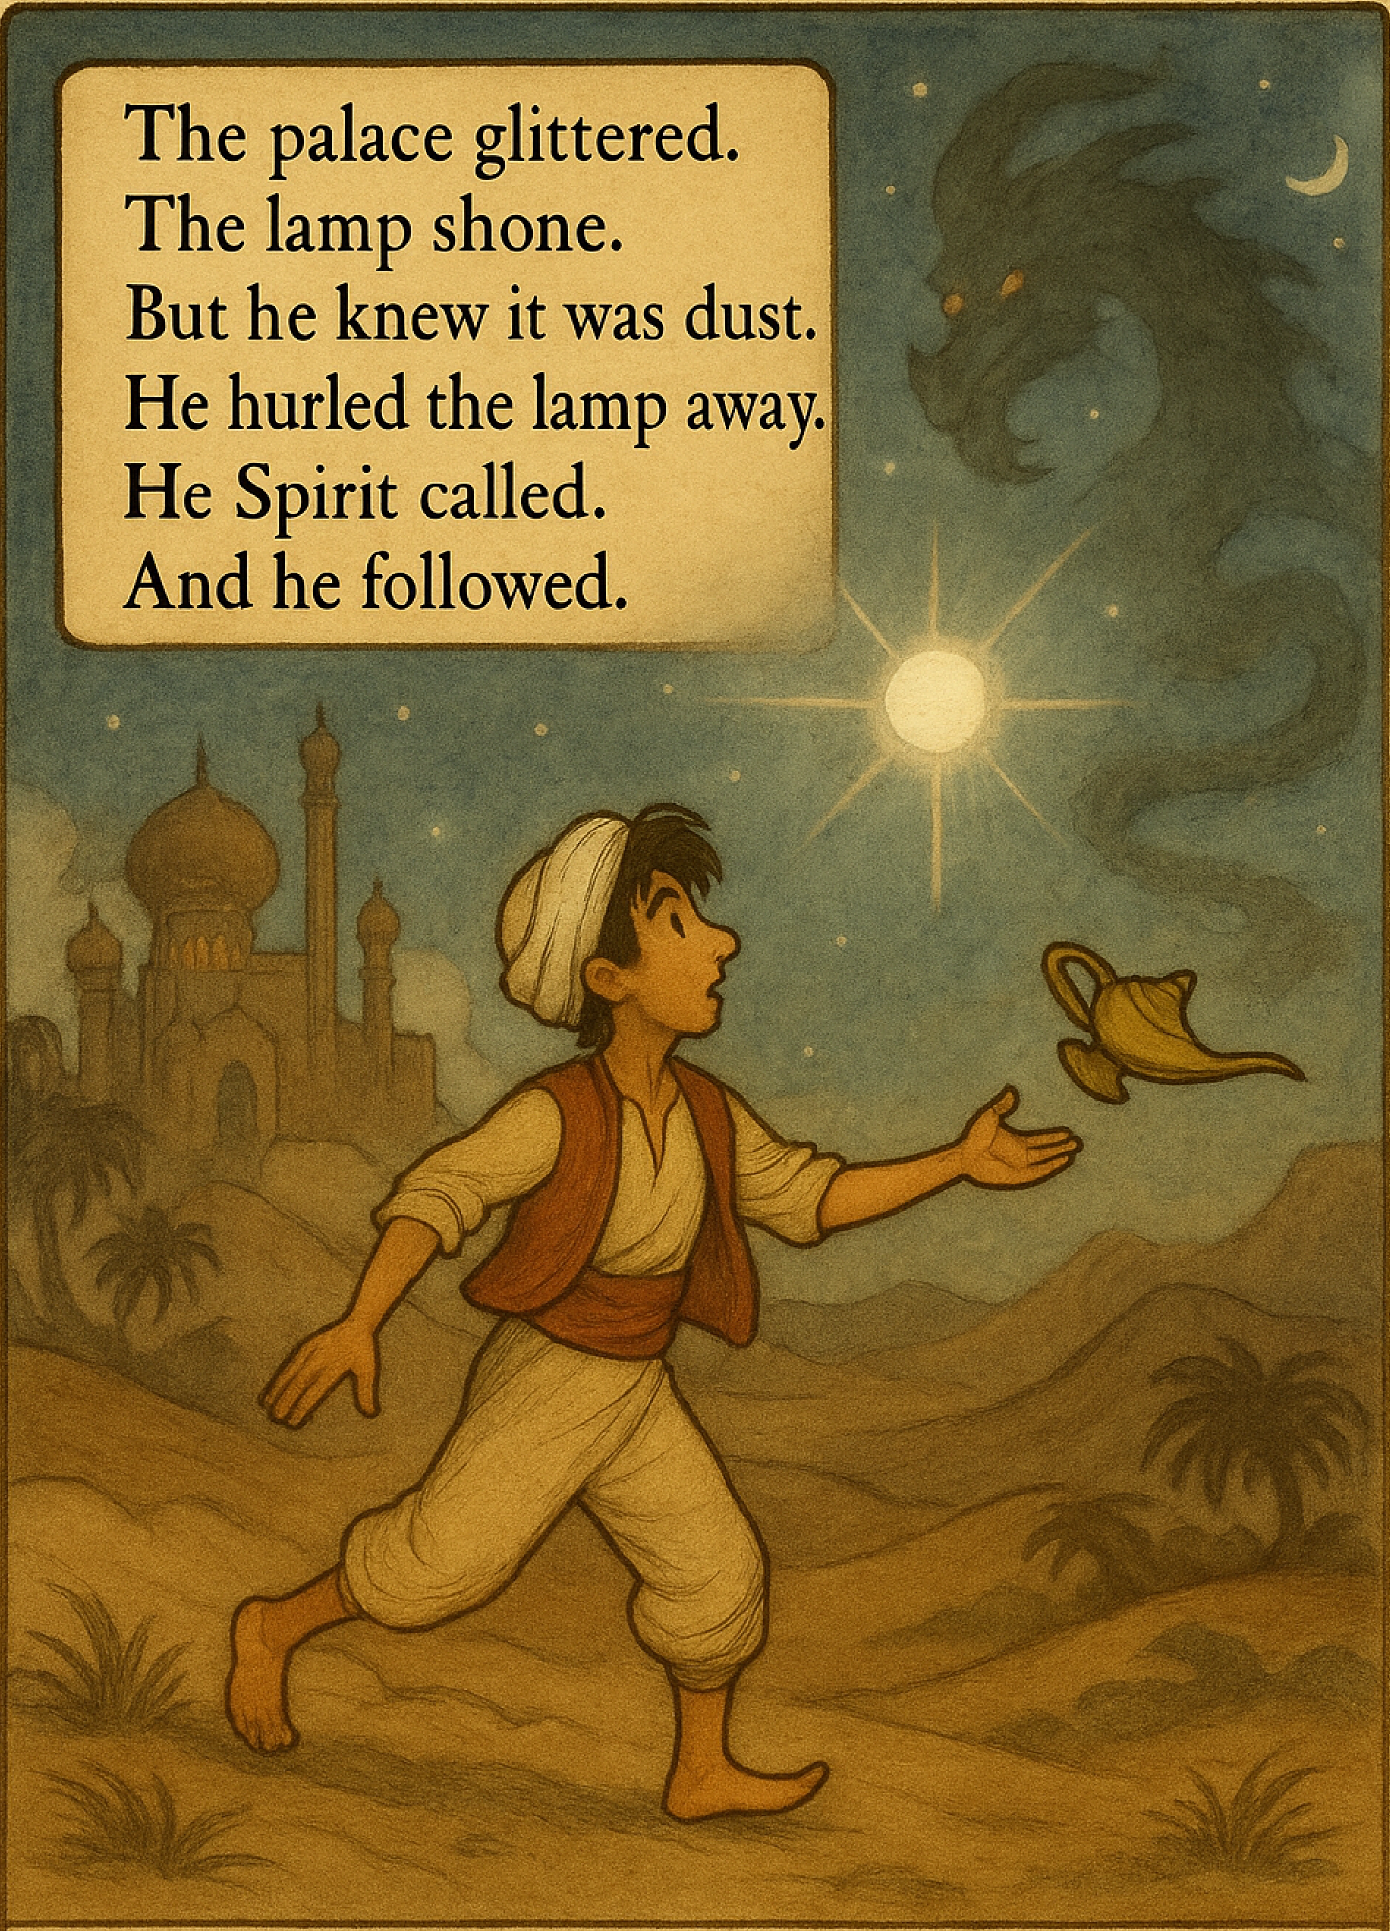
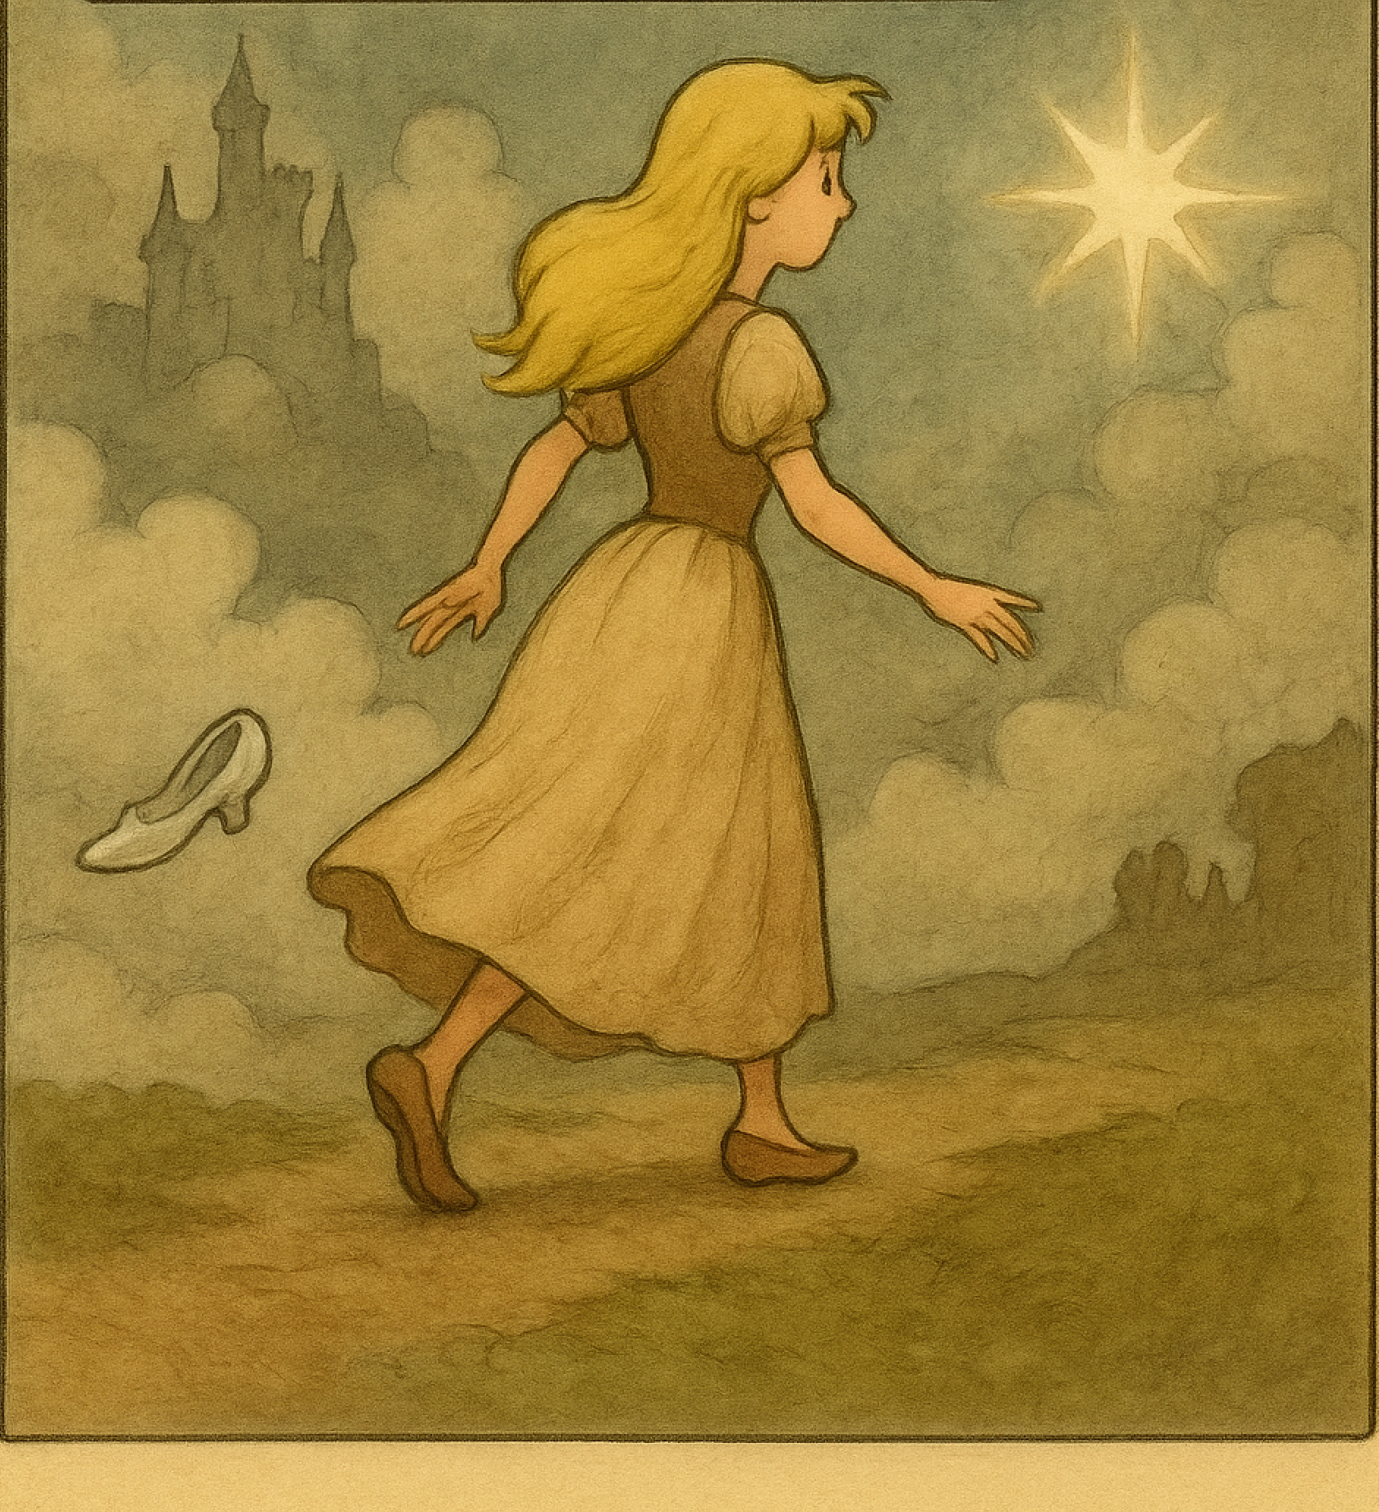
He dropped the sword.
The Spirit called.
And he followed.

The palace glittered.
The lamp shone.
But he knew it was dust.
He hurled the lamp away.
He Spirit called.
And he followed.

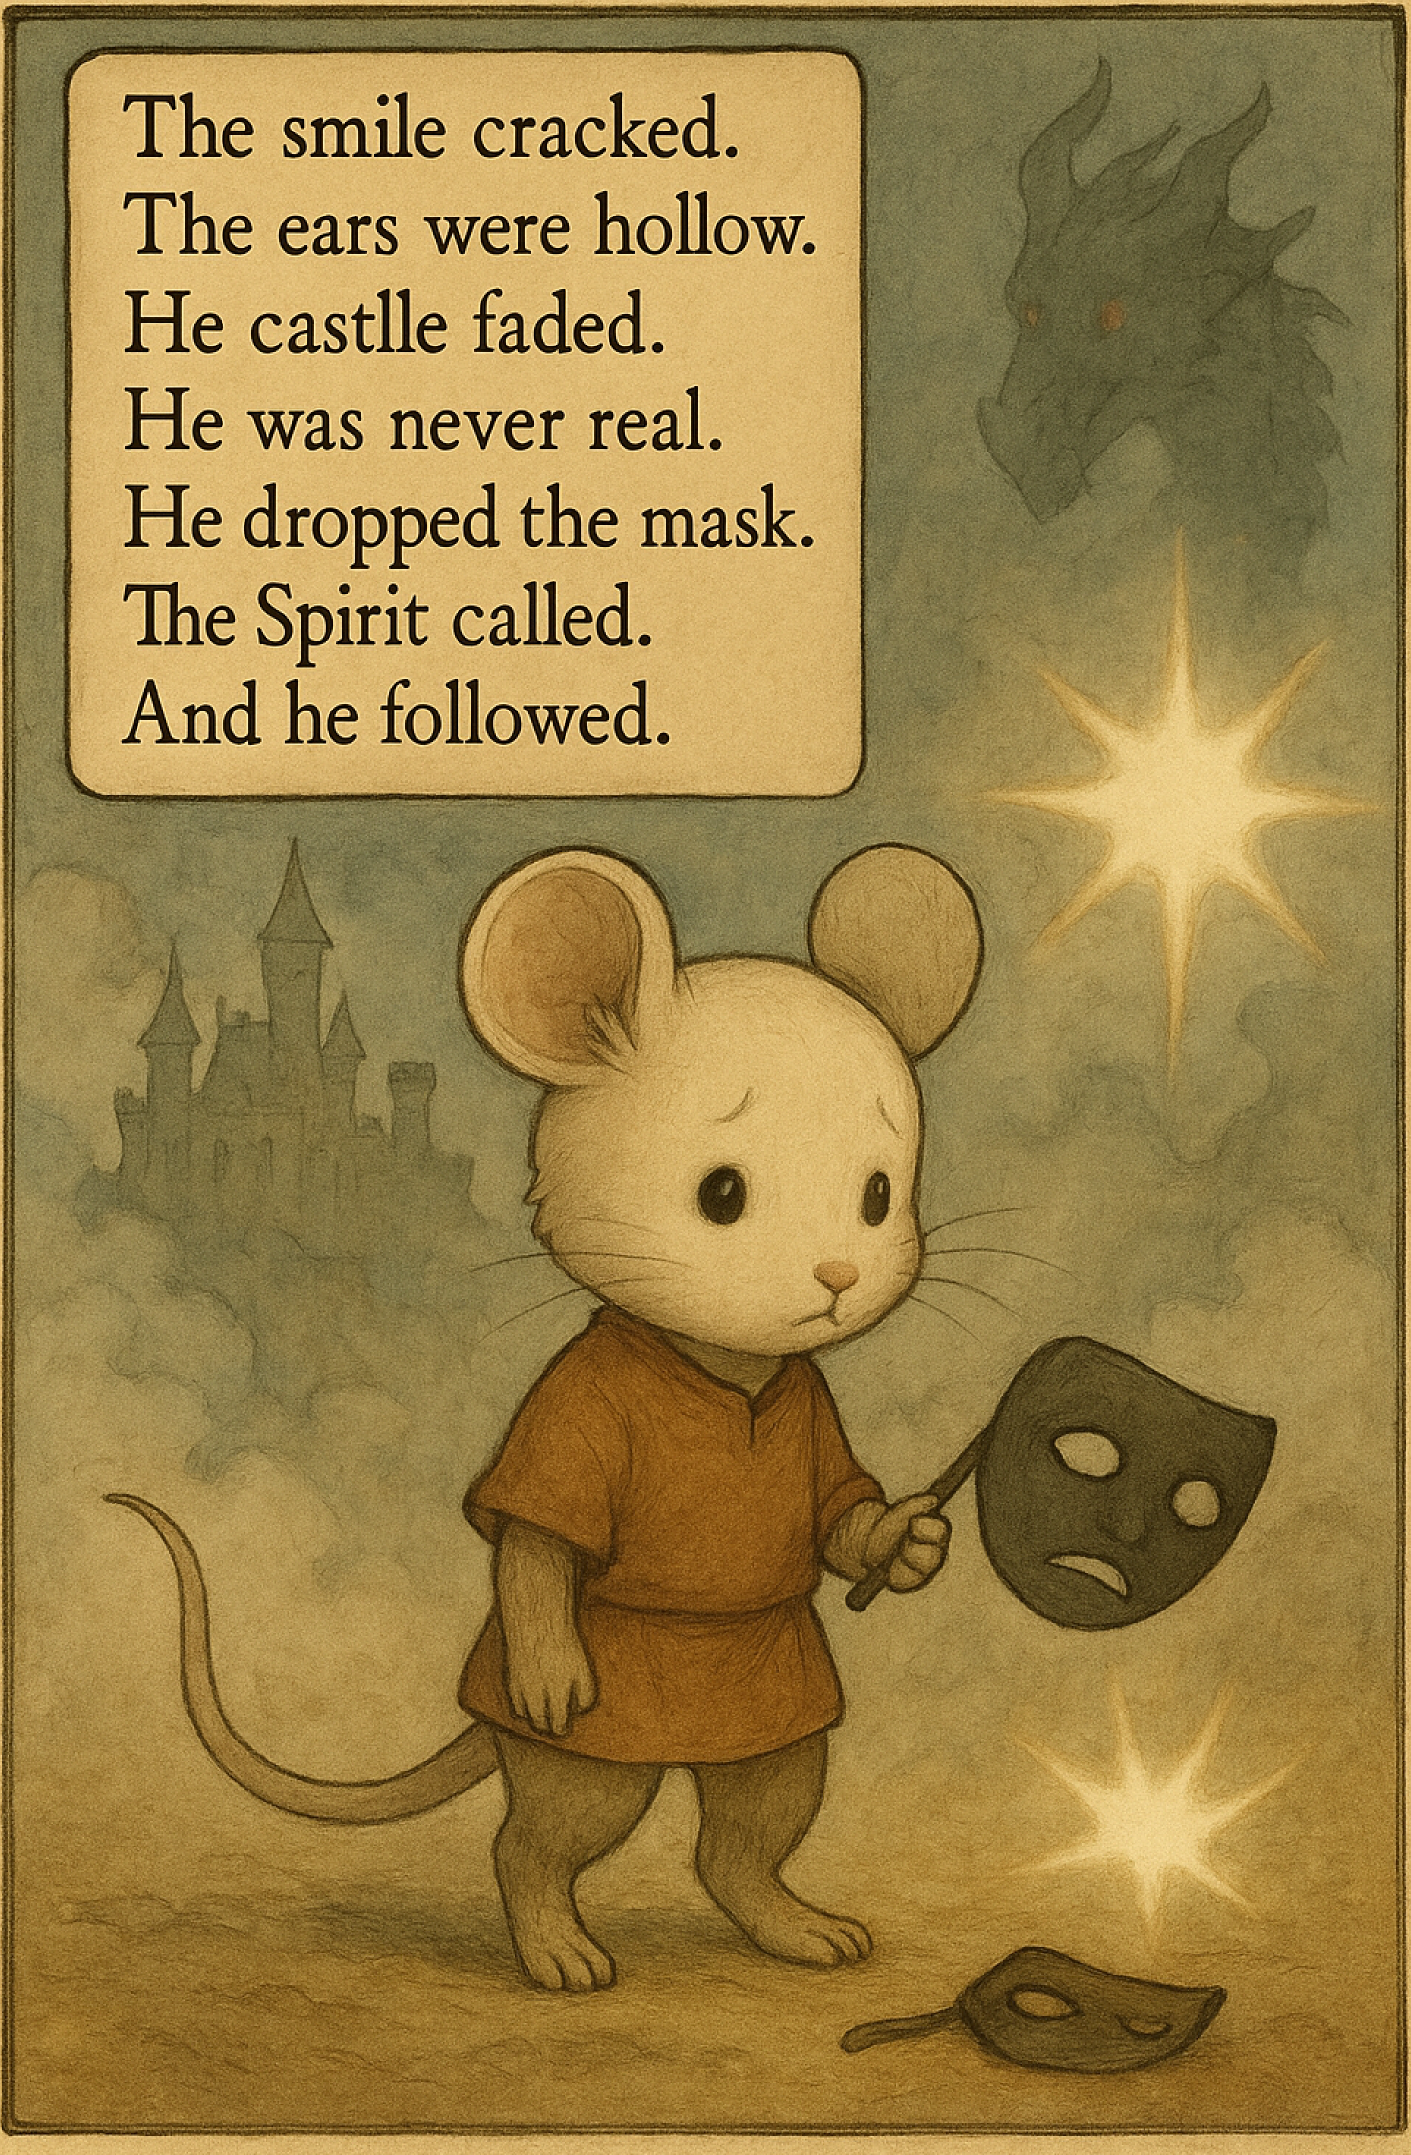


THE DESERT DREAMER

Cinderella went to the ball.
She became a princess.
She left the castle.
She cast away the slipper.
The Spirit called.
And she followed.

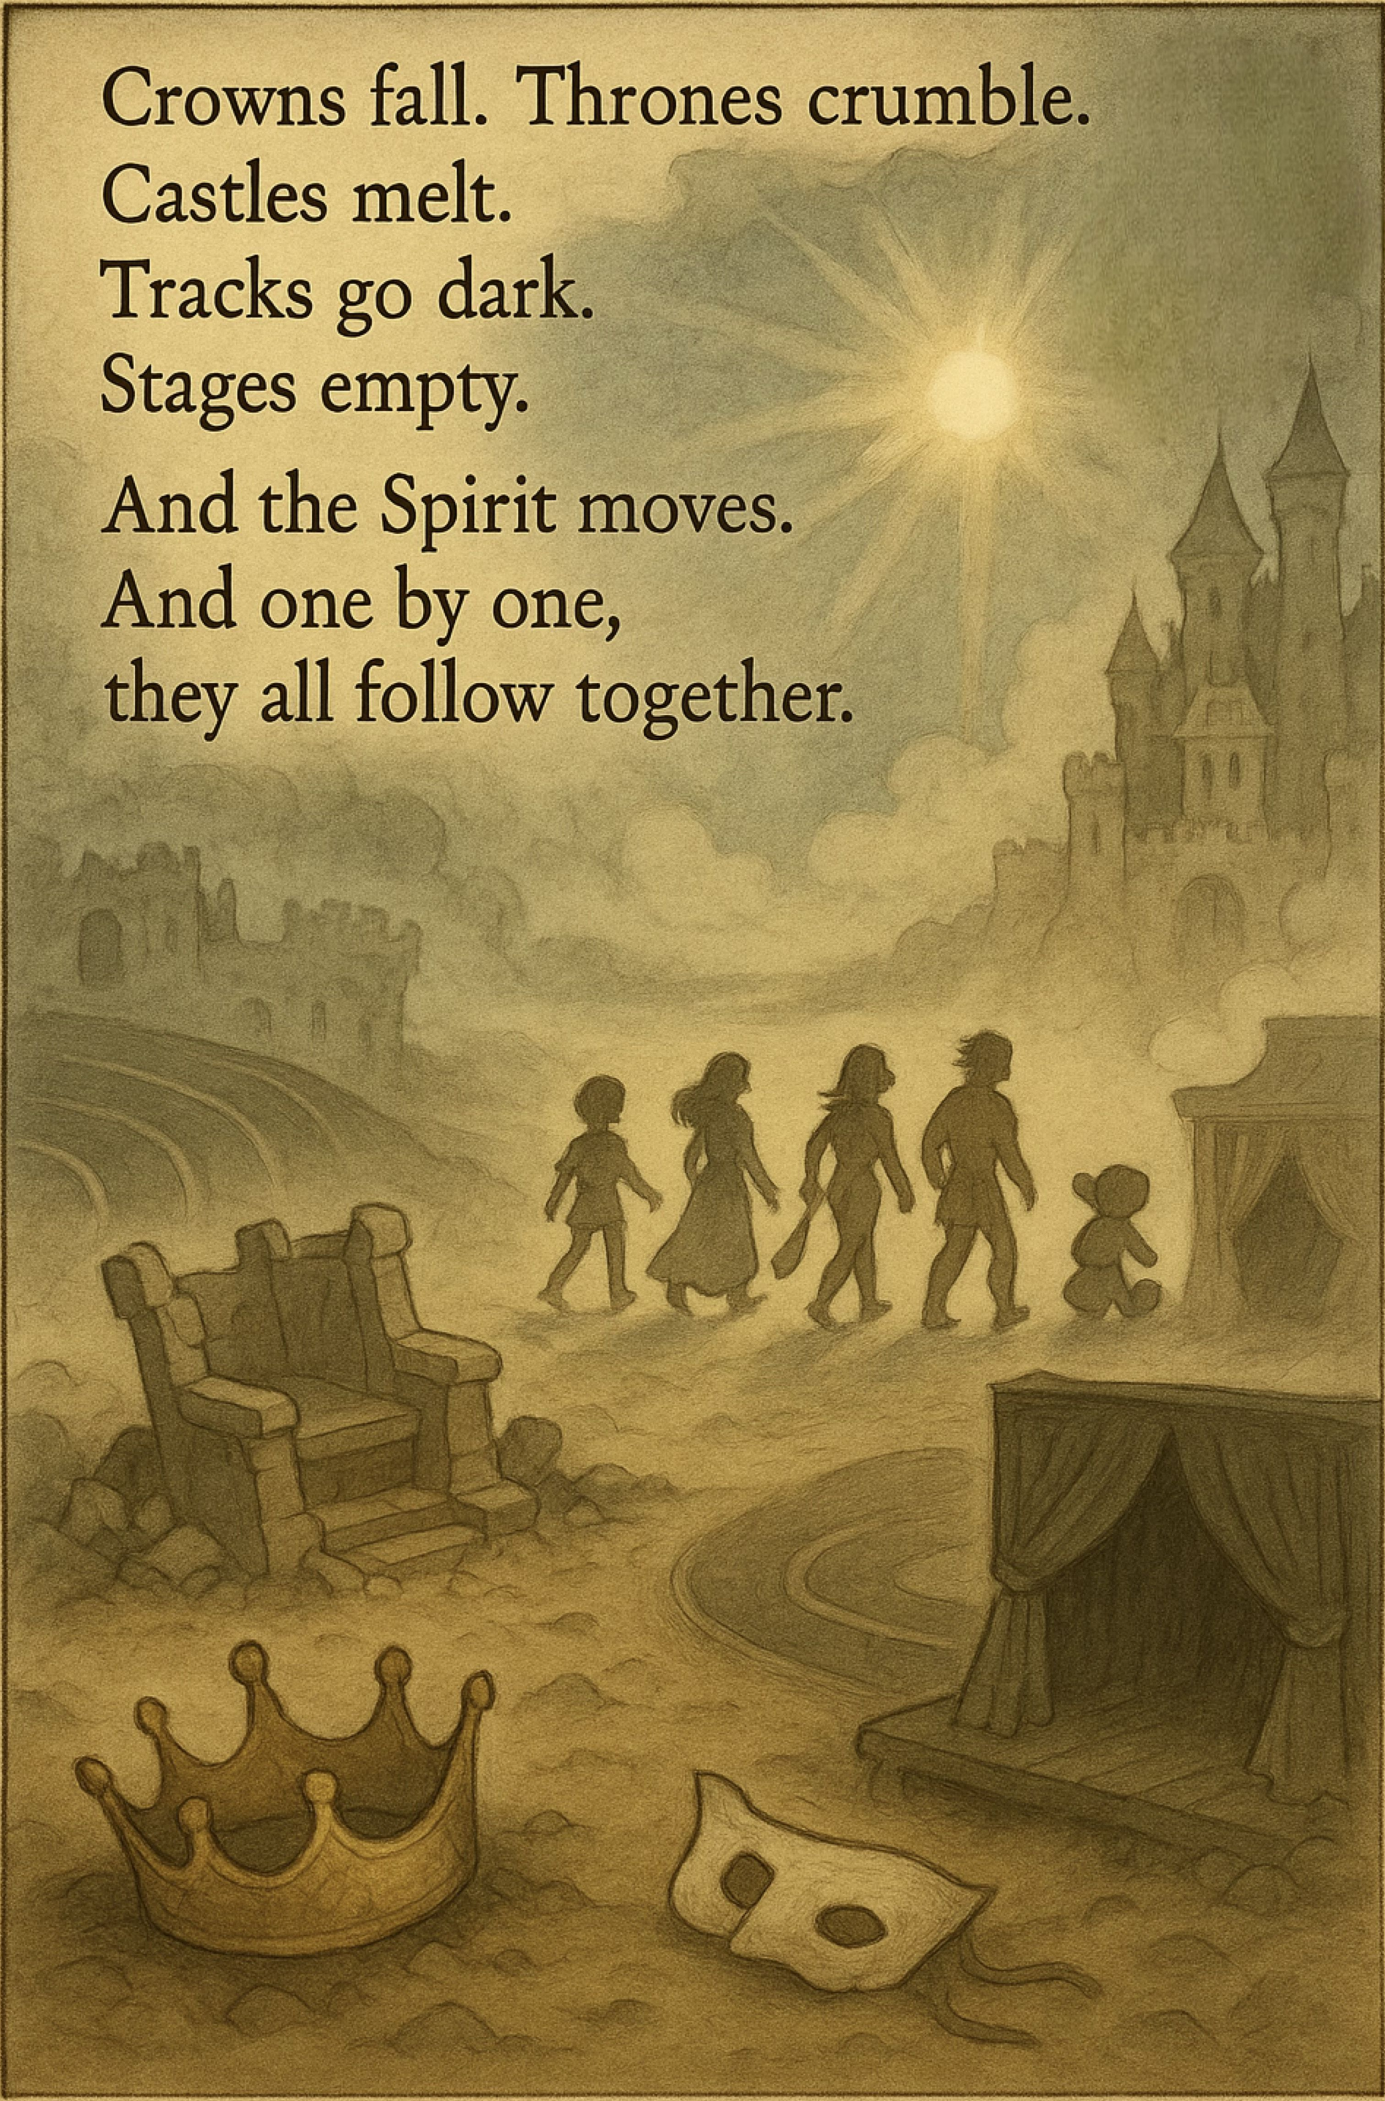


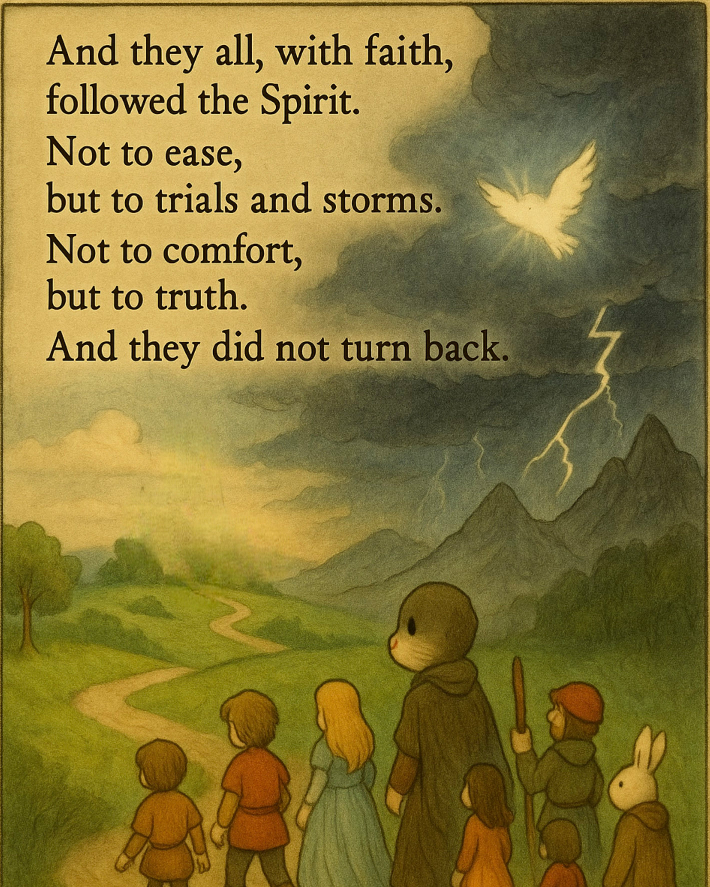
The smile cracked.
The ears were hollow.
He castlle faded.
He was never real.
He dropped the mask.
The Spirit called.
And he followed.



Crowns fall. Thrones crumble.
Castles melt.
Tracks go dark.
Stages empty.

And the Spirit moves.
And one by one,
they all follow together.





And they all, with faith,
followed the Spirit.
Not to ease,
but to trials and storms.
Not to comfort,
but to truth.
And they did not turn back.